

Concept Question 2-3: How can you measure the impulse response of a real system?

Method #1: By measuring the response of the system to a short and high pulse.

Method #2: By measuring the response of the system to a step function, and differentiating the step response.